HOW TO SEE THE COUNTRY.

The Choice of Seats on Different Railroads to Enjoy the Scenery. There is a choice of seats in the cars of almost every railway, not on account of sun or shade, but for what cent target practice. The dinner is to be seen, unless the scenes along the route are familiar; then the shady side is to be chosen. The Piedmont Air line runs through such a varied scenic country that it is difficult to choose; either side will do-it will take a round trip to see it all, especially on the Western North Carolina road to Asheville and the Warm Springs. On the Queen and Crescent trains out of Cincinnati a seat on the left is best as far as High bridge; thence the scenery is for the most part on the right hand side of the cars to Chattanooga and around Lookout mountain, though the rear end of the train affords the only good view of the historic hills; thence southward the left side is the best.

On New York Central trains leaving New York the seats on the left side of the car are the ones best for scenery along the Hudson to Albany and also west of that city through the Mohawk valley.

On West Shore trains the very opposite seats are to be chosen; those on the right hand side afford the best views of the scenery.

On the Lehigh Valley road it is best to take a seat on the right as far as Mauch Chunk, on the left from there to Fairview, then on the right as far as Wilkesbarre-after that on the

On the Erie, going west, take a left hand seat as far as Port Jervis, and then on the right.

The bulk of the Baltimore and Ohie scenery is best enjoyed from the left windows from New York to Washington, also westward from the cap-

On the Pennsylvania railroad, from New York to Harrisburg, a seat on Murphy and Morris and B. M. Goldthe left is best, thence to Altoona on the right, again on the left to Cresson dinner at 8 o'clock p. m., and it was and on the right to Pittsburg.

On the Iron Mountain route, south from St. Louis, a seat on the left side of the car will show the fine views of the Mississippi river. The great Iron mountain of Missouri is on the west side of the track.
